2. Defendant Thompson Mug Company, LLC. (hereinafter “TMC”) is a Florida limited liability company with a principal place of business at 5138 3rd Ave. N. Saint Petersburg, Florida 33710.

3. Defendant Randall B. Thompson (hereinafter “Thompson”) is, and was at all relevant times, an officer, member and control person of TMC and a former member of Lumberland Florida domiciled at 5138 3rd Ave. N. Saint Petersburg, Florida 33710.

4. Defendants John/Jane Doe 1-100 are the partners and joint venturers of Defendants and/or the officers, members and/or control persons of TMC who names and addresses are presently unknown, but whose identities will be made known through discovery.

7. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(1) and (2) because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims occurred in this district.

FACTS COMMON TO ALL CLAIMS

8. The allegations of the foregoing Paragraphs are repleaded and incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein.

9. Lumberlend presently owns and operates a Concord, Massachusetts based manufacturing and retail business that sells customized drink containers crafted from baseball bat barrels (hereinafter "Bat Mug(s)"). Lumberlend's Bat Mugs are marketed and sold on Lumberlend's website www.lumberlend.com.

10. Lumberlend's sole member is presently Adam Wnukowski Jr. (hereinafter "Wnukowski").

11. Prior to moving its operations to Massachusetts, Lumberlend was originally formed by Wnukowski and Thompson as a Florida limited liability company for the purpose of manufacturing, marketing and selling Bat Mugs. Lumberlend Florida was organized under the laws of the State of Florida on November 6, 2015.

12. Following the organization of Lumberlend Florida, Wnukowski and Thompson assigned their interests in the Bat Mug to Lumberlend Florida. Lumberlend Florida, as assignee, thereafter filed a patent application (Application Number 29/546,670) concerning the Bat Mug with the United States Patent and Trademark Office on November 24, 2015 (hereinafter the "Patent Application"). A copy of the Patent Application is attached as Exhibit "A".

13. After a few months of operation, Thompson, who was working another job at the time, became disillusioned with the business and agreed to sell his interest in Lumberlend Florida to Wnukowski.

14. Following negotiations between the parties, Wnukowski and Thompson agreed that Wnukowski would acquire Thompson's interest in Lumberlend Florida and relocate the business to Massachusetts.

15. In accordance with his agreement with Thompson, Wnukowski drafted a one-page contract evidencing the sale of Thompson's interest in Lumberlend Florida to Wnukowski. A copy of this contract is attached herewith as Exhibit "B" (hereinafter the "Contract").

16. After drafting the Contract, Wnukowski arranged for a copy of the Contract executed by him to be delivered to Thompson for signature. Thompson signed the Contract and received payment at that time from Wnukowski.

17. As a result of the sale, Wnukowski was the sole remaining member of Lumberlend Florida.

18. After relocating the business to Massachusetts, Lumberlend Florida assigned its interest in all of its assets, including but not limited its ownership of the Bat Mug design, the Bat Mug's distinctive trade dress and its good will, trade secrets, inventions, business processes, website and marketing materials to Wnukowski. Lumberlend Florida was thereafter dissolved in September, 2016. Plaintiff Lumberlend was then organized as a Massachusetts limited liability company and thereafter Wnukowski transferred the aforementioned assets along with his rights under the above-mentioned Contract with Thompson to Lumberlend.

19. As part of Lumberlend's marketing and branding efforts, Lumberlend describes itself on its website as the "home of the original baseball bat mug". This slogan constituted and continues to constitute an integral component of Lumberlend's advertising and branding efforts.

20. Following the execution of the Contract and relocation of the business, Lumberlend spent considerable time, effort and resources developing brand identity and advertising, promoting and offering for the sale its Bat Mugs. As a result of these efforts, Lumberlend's Bat Mug acquired distinctiveness and Lumberlend's Bat Mug developed a reputation among consumers as a high quality, well manufactured, functional and aesthetically pleasing product. During this period, Lumberlend also developed a reputation for quick and efficient order fulfillment and excellent customer service.

21. After taking note of Lumberlend's success, Thompson decided to form TMC in late September, 2016 to compete with Lumberlend and produce, market and sell Bat Mugs. While the Bat Mugs marketed and sold by TMC are of a lesser quality than Lumberlend's Bat Mugs, the TMC Bat Mugs are confusingly similar to Lumberlend's Bat Mugs and are in the manner of the design depicted in aforementioned Patent Application.

22. Hoping to benefit from Lumberlend's marketing efforts, brand and reputation, and in a willful and intentional attempt to misappropriate Lumberlend's good will, TMC copied portions of Lumberlend's website and slogans and began to advertise itself on its website (thompsonmugco.com) as the "home of the original baseball bat mug". By using this slogan, Defendants likewise hoped to make their customers and potential customers mistakenly believe that TMC was the successor in interest to Lumberlend Florida.

23. Defendants' use of the design of Lumberlend's Bat Mug and its unlawful and deceptive marketing efforts have, as Defendants intended, caused confusion and mistake as to the source of TMC's Bat Mugs and caused harm to the goodwill Lumberlend has developed in its company and in its Bat Mug trade dress. As a direct and proximate result of TMC's and Thompson's aforementioned unlawful actions, Lumberlend has suffered lost sales, loss of business reputation and dilution of its brand and trade dress.

24. Although Thompson had sold all right, title and interest in Lumberlend and its assets, including but not limited to the Bat Mug, to Wnukowski, Thompson and TMC presently take the position that TMC is entitled to continue to market and sell its Bat Mugs as Thompson and Wnukowski were "joint inventors" of the Bat Mug. Given this stance, Lumberlend is substantially likely to suffer further and irreparable damage as a result of Defendants' illegal activities.

25. The allegations of the foregoing Paragraphs are pleaded and incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein.

Defendants' unauthorized use in commerce of the Trade Dress constitutes a false designation of origin in violation of 15 U.S.C. §1125(a)(1)(A) that is likely to cause confusion, to cause mistake, or to deceive as to the affiliation, connection, or association of TMC with Lumberlend and/or as to the origin, sponsorship, or approval by Lumberlend of TMC's goods, and will irreparably harm Lumberlend and the goodwill that it has developed in the Trade Dress.

33. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' violations of 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a), Lumberlend has been and will continue to be damaged irreparably.

51. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' common law trademark infringement, Lumberlend has been damaged and will continue to be damaged.
52. Upon information and belief, Defendants have and/or will soon realize substantial profits and other benefits rightfully belonging to Lumberlend as a result of their wrongful conduct.
